MTA

About The Map

The Map is a comprehensive reference for all of MTA's regional services and connections. The Map gives you detailed information for:

- MTA subways and railroads, and all connections between them.
- Connections between MTA subways and railroads and intersecting bus services.
- Selected connections between MTA transit and other private and public carriers in the region — including buses, ferries, and rail services.
- All MTA bridges and tunnels and other selected water crossings.

Using The Map

Making Connections: Display boxes on The Map show all connecting services at select stations. Stations without display boxes show rail service only on the subway side, and bus connections on the railroad side; these are indicated below or next to the station name.

Accessible Stations: Subway and railroad stations accessible to the disabled are indicated by a ♿ on the map. Telephone numbers for information about station accessibility, elevators and escalators on the subway, reduced fares for senior citizens and people with disabilities, as well as paratransit services, are available on the reverse panel under MTA Service Information for each service.

Other Transit Services: The MTA cannot assume responsibility for the scheduling and services of non-MTA transportation providers. You may call them directly for information. See Other Transit Services on the reverse side.

Connecting to the MTA Bus System

The Map indicates major subway/bus connections. You can get maps for NYC Transit buses in each borough on board buses or by calling 718-330-1234. For LI Bus maps call 516-766-6722.

MTA New York City Transit operates 3,867 air-conditioned buses throughout the five boroughs, around the clock, providing 1.4 million rides on 203 local and 31 express routes. Approximately 375 of the more than 14,000 bus stops are at or near subway stations.

MTA Long Island Bus operates in nearly 100 communities in Nassau County, western Suffolk County, and eastern Queens County. LI Bus routes connect with 45 Long Island Rail Road stations and four subway stations.

Paying Your Fare

Fare Structure: Subways, local buses, MTA Staten Island Railway, and MTA Long Island Bus have a base fare of $1.50, no matter how far you ride. Express buses that travel between New York City boroughs cost $3.00. Railroad fares are distance-based; combination monthly rail tickets with MetroCard are available by mail.

You can use MetroCard to pay your fare on all MTA New York City Transit buses and subways, Long Island Bus, and most private buses. You can buy MetroCard at all subway stations or at more than 3,300 neighborhood stores. For MetroCard information, call 212-METROCARD (within NYC) and 1-800 METROCARD (outside NYC) from 7 a.m. to 11 p.m. on weekdays and 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. on weekends.

You can use tokens at all subway stations and on buses, which also accept coins.

Two Kinds of MetroCard: You can now choose between two kinds of MetroCard — Unlimited Rides and Pay-Per-Ride. You can buy a 7-Day or a 30-Day MetroCard, or a 30-Day Express Bus Plus MetroCard. Each offers unlimited rides for a fixed price. The 7-Day Unlimited Ride MetroCard costs $17 and lets you make as many subway and bus rides as you want in a 7-day period; the 30-Day Card costs $63 and lets you do the same for a 30-day period. The 30-Day Express Bus Plus gives you unlimited rides on express buses, local buses and subways for $120. For details, pick up an Unlimited Rides brochure in any subway station.

You can also put money on a Pay-Per-Ride MetroCard (in amounts from $3 to $80) and fares will be deducted each time you use the card. With this MetroCard, subway-to-bus, bus-to-subway, and bus-to-bus transfers are free within two hours. Pay-Per-Ride MetroCard also offers a 10 percent bonus for purchases or refills of more than $15 — that's 11 rides for the price of 10.

Reduced Fare: Unlimited Ride and Pay-Per-Ride MetroCard are also available for reduced-fare customers. Senior citizens and people with disabilities who have proper identification are eligible for reduced fare on all MTA services, including local buses and subways; off-peak express buses; Long Island Bus services; most New York City private buses; and Metro-North and Long Island Rail Road trains, except trains arriving at New York City terminals between the hours of 6 a.m. and 10 a.m. on weekdays. Forms of proper identification include Reduced-Fare MetroCard, Medicare Card, NYC Department for the Aging ID, Access-A-Ride ID, and MTA Reduced-Fare ID (pre-1995). For a Reduced-Fare application or more information, call 718-243-4999 or 212- 541-6228 (TTY/TDD).
